Re: The People's Republic of China on ESG and D&O Innovation

Dear Madam Superintendent:

xNY.io - Bank.org, PBC is proud to be under the esteemed oversight of your distinguished office. Today's memo signals concern of recent ESG and D&O research published by Nanjing Audit University of the People's Republic of China.¹ The institution is operated under the auspices of the Jiangsu Provincial Government, the National Audit Office of China and the People's Bank of China.²

xNY.io - Bank.org, PBC is concerned that the Nanjing Audit University and the People's Bank of China potentially could be mis-representing intent related to ESG and D&O innovation, at the expense of our global enterprise.

1. According to the Council on Foreign Relations, China is the world's top emitter, producing more than a quarter of the world's annual greenhouse gas emissions, which contribute to climate change.³
2. Nanjing Audit University's "theoretical analysis and hypothesis developments" suggest that the People's Republic of China is embryonic in the enforcement of ESG and/or D&O mandates. Meanwhile, suggesting Bloomberg as a reputational capital.
3. xNY.io - Bank.org, PBC has collated 37 highlights to Nanjing Audit University's ESG and D&O research for NY-DFS consideration.⁴

As a Bill and Melinda Gates Scholar and Blockchain Scholar holding international law distinction(s)⁵ My international graduate research has touched on Western profit of China's water resources. xNY.io - Bank.org, PBC seeks to protect pure New York State ESG and D&O innovation. Madam Superindnet, we attentively recognize you are the world's most powerful regulatory leader in this regard.⁶

From this humble perspective, xNY.io - Bank.org, PBC seeks to earn your respect and consideration to explore the New York False Claims Act as a potential channel.⁷
